In the hour of morning worship the pastor gave the promised report of the Conference of the Federated Evangelical Churches of the state in Middletown, as guests of the Episcopalian body there, the first event of this kind in the history of Connecticut. There were unusually fine speakers, who emphasized the need of reconstruction in many lines besides those of business. The churches are now entering heartily into various forms of this work and among other things seeking substitutes for saloons.

The inquest relative to the death of Millard F. Jordan, who was killed in an automobile accident at Danville two weeks ago, having been completed, yet, Coroner Arthur G. Bill stated, indications are that there will be important developments in this case in the distant future.

District Chairman Charles T. Tillman, of the Victory Loan committee, said Thursday afternoon that his organization of town chairmen is practically completed, and the list probably will be announced before the end of this week. The Victory drive starts April 1, and will be a summer, with every town going over the top as they have in all of the loans of the past.

No town will want to break the remarkable record that has been made by Killingly's allotment in the new drive is $326,000. This looks like a lot of money to obtain in Killingly, but Chairman Tillman is very positive that it will be done. It will be remembered that Killingly was asked to raise an identical amount in the Fourth loan drive, and that the town's response was to roll up subscriptions that totaled $327,000.

In the previous loans Killingly has subscribed for more than $1,250,000 worth of bonds—and it is going to fall down on the Victory drive mark of triumph and the return of the town's soldier and sailor sons to the pursuits of peace.

Another period of fear and trembling is just ahead—in the minds of some taxpayers—for the re-assessment of Killingly's property is about to begin. This work will be carried out because of statute requirement, not because some group of individuals or officials here in Killingly thinks it should be done. It's just not to be done to comply with state laws.

The work here will be carried out by the members of the board of assessors. They will visit each piece of property, inspect it and place the valuation where they think it should be. Charles W. Hutchins, member of the board, said Thursday that the arrangements for the revaluation are completed. He said that for the fastest co-operation of the property owners in the carrying out of the work, "We hope all taxpayers will offer us their fullest assistance, and it will be appreciated." Mr. Hutchins said: "We want to inspect all property thoroughly and such assistance as the owners give us will be appreciated. We expect to do it and who will not co-operate and there may be those who will attempt to conceal information that the assessors should have, but we are prepared to take such cases in a way that will be thoroughly effective. Hiding information from the assessors would be dangerous practice for anyone who attempts to indulge in it."

The re-valuation job will not be small nor easy, the assessors are well aware. It means many days of painstaking and arduous work.

The Girls' club has held a first meeting in the organization's newly furnished quarters in the Exchange block and the members are well pleased with them. The rooms have been comfortably furnished and made so attractive that the members feel sure that interest will be maintained. Classes in basketry and sewing having been organized. Mrs. C. H. Kingsbury will teach the class in basketry. Miss Frances Spaulding the class in sewing.

POTNAM

A survey is under way at the Israel Putnam school with a view to determining just how a percentage of the pupils who are studying there may be able to do some of the work of the present school.

School authorities who have been investigating the matter are fully convinced that 25 to 30 pupils may be transferred to the Smith street school, where there is ample accommodation for them, and thereby relieve the present congestion at the Israel Putnam school.

Belief is chiefly sought in the first, second and third grades. These are considered overcrowded. A canvass of the pupils about and about now attending the Israel Putnam school are resident on streets fully as near to the Israel street school as to the Israel Putnam school. If these pupils can be transferred to the Smith street school, where there is a vacant room, the congestion problem will be practically solved, without going to the extra expense of putting a costly addition on the Putnam school.

The Smith street school is a splendid brick building, with a fine heating system and in every other way is satisfactorily equipped.

Another teacher might be required at the Smith street school if additional pupils are sent there, but the expense would be much less in any case than building an addition.

It was stated here Thursday afternoon that the Arcadium club will issue a challenge to Putnam lodge Elks to play a whist, pool and billiard tournament. The Elks have just completed a tournament with the Bohemian club of Danielson. The Arcadium also have in mind a challenge to the Bohemian club of Danielson, so that when the list of school year ends, the club members during the spring months of the year.

Members of Putnam lodge of Elks learned Thursday that there is not doubt to be made of their organization here in the near future in order that the nearby town of Danielson might have a lodge for the amusement of its members. A charter has been turned down by the organization officials having supervision over Connecticut. The effort of the Danielson men, who are under more and more to Putnam lodge, has been met with the friendly feeling toward the Danielson men, and that another lodge will be established in the near future, but the charter sought. The reason given officially for not allowing the Danielson lodge to be established is that the town is too small to support a lodge.

Superintendent William L. Macdonald of Putnam's schools who is about to engage in reconstruction work on the school building here, is expected to leave for the federal government experts to leave.
